IN FOCUS: TIANI SPIRIT

TIANI SPIRIT EMPLOYS BLOCKCHAIN TO WIN HEALTH DATA PROVENANCE CHALLENGE

The Heliad Holding Tiani Spirit won over the jury from the US Department of Health with its new blockchain solution ensuring the transparent integrity of data.

The software from Tiani Spirit is already making it possible for customers such as hospitals, health insurance companies, doctors and patients to securely and reliably exchange patient information while meeting the highest standards of security and compliance and fulfilling all government requirements.

Together with researchers from the Cyber Security Group at the University of Southampton as well as Jason Rosenzweig, Tiani formed the Hyper e-Health Team, which has now reached the final round of a competition sponsored by the US Department of Health using a blockchain approach. Thanks to the new blockchain technology, the Tiani Spirit software not only facilitates the secure and reliable exchange of data based on the IHE standard, it also ensures the integrity of the data record itself. This means that going forward it will be possible to examine the blockchain at any time to see who made which change to a patient record, free of error and secure from tampering.

As a result, Tiani Spirit has proven once again that they are not only setting the standard in the field of IHE-compatible healthcare, but that they remain the leaders in technological development.
